ARMY CAMP AT GETTYSBURG

GENERAL STAFF HAS DESIGNATED THIS PLACE.

Two Regiments to be sent Here to Be Enlarged to Four Regiments— Nearly 8,000 Men.

It was apparent to many of our people that the Gettysburg Military Park would offer a site of great value to the government for the mobilization and training of troops. About two weeks ago it was decided by a number of our business men to get busy and push the claims of Gettysburg. Congressman A. R. Brodbeck was appealed to and gave his active support to the movement, a number of other friends of Gettysburg were communicated with and in short space of time communications began going to the Secretary of War recommending Gettysburg for a camp site. A committee waited on Colonel John P. Nicholson, chairman of the Gettysburg National Park Commission and he was in favor of the project, so Gettysburg was named all along the line. The officers training camps had all been designated, so a mobilization camp was asked for.

The Boosters' Club at a meeting the early part of last week named C. A. Williams and Wm. Arch. McClean to go to Washington if necessary for information to push Gettysburg. On all sides from many influential sources Gettysburg developed friends and by the end of last week matters had reached such a point that Assistant Secretary of War Ingraham had recommended Gettysburg as a camp site to Secretary of War Baker and the latter had recommended Gettysburg to the General War Staff.

This development was not known in Gettysburg until the Army Staff in the eastern department had assigned as an expansion post the Gettysburg National Park. Other points named at the same time were Fort Mifflin, Va., Syracuse, N. Y., and Mount Point, Long Island. Before this news was received plans were in progress here to send a committee of five or more to Washington to confer with Secretary of War Baker. Through Congressman Brodbeck's arrangements for such a conference were made, but when the news was verified that Gettysburg had been designated as a camp site, such conference was abandoned, so our people felt that what had been asked for had been granted.

At a meeting of the Boosters' Club Tuesday evening after it was decided not to send a committee to Washington, C. W. Myers and W. A. McClean were directed to send a telegram of thanks to Congressman Brodbeck for his successful efforts in having Gettysburg selected as a site for an army camp. Such a telegram was sent Congressman Brodbeck.

Gettysburg was unanimous in presenting the advantages of Gettysburg for a camp site. The college authorities expressed a willingness to permit the use of any buildings that could be conveniently be given over for army use and will make every effort to give whatever accommodation that may be within their power to give. A camp here seemed to be at a most available point, with good railroad accommodations. It had always proved a most healthy site for the camping of National Guards and Regulars. There has always been a sufficient supply of good pure water and the natural characteristics of the place have always recommended Gettysburg for training and maneuver purposes.

The Fourth and Seventh United States Infantry at the Mexican border have been designated to go to Gettysburg and there to be enlarged and trained as the 28th, 30th, 60th and 81st Regular Infantry. As the war strength of a regiment of infantry is about 1050 men, the camp will start with nearly 4000 men and be enlarged to four regiments as quickly as can be done, so almost 8000 men will be in camp here at an early date.

Congressman Brodbeck has been informed that the encampment will be started under canvas, and that it is not only likely that the called men from a certain district, that has not yet been specified, will be assembled at Gettysburg for training, but the men who will come under the proposed universal military law, which will apply to men nineteen years old, will be trained here also. It also developed that Major General Bell, commander of the military department of the East, and who is also a member of the general staff of the army, will, in the very near future, make an inspection of the site for the camp at Gettysburg.

Quartermaster officers already have been assigned to construct necessary headquarters at the camp named and a large number of regular army officers have been ordered up for promotion preparatory to taking advanced grades. The movement of troops from the southern department to carry out the orders will begin at once.

For the first time in many years the vacant ground on the south-eastern slope of East Cemetery Hill has been plowed up and put in condition for planting. This ground will be for the use of school boys who have signified their willingness to assist in the country's campaign for increased production.

PARENTS DISCUSS SCHOOLS

TALKS BY MRS. WEAVER, MRS. GRIMM, MRS. WINEBRENNER.

Miss Helen Cope Helps to an Understanding with a Talk from a Teacher's Point of View.

On last Friday evening the last meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association for the school year was held in the High School Building. There was a very large attendance at a meeting distinctly different from any previously held, a meeting confined to the parents and teachers, while the children were entertained in a separate room and it proved so very successful that it is a good guess that many more of the same kind will follow and many more parents will be attracted because they will be able to bring the children and have them entertained during the program provided for the adults. Mrs. H. Milton Roth, president of the association, presided and meeting was opened by reading of minutes by the secretary, Miss Mary Benner. A number of short talks were given by parents.

Mrs. E. A. Weaver spoke on the good coming from a Parent-Teachers' Association, of its helpfulness to both parents and teachers and of the unlimited power for good of the teacher to help the pupils to high ideals that will be with them and bless them all through their lives.

Mrs. Karl Grimm spoke of the misunderstanding between parents and children and the help the former can give the teachers. Too many parents forget the rights of the children and also forget to teach the children to respect the rights of parents. Nagging, fault-finding and arguments play havoc with wrecked nerves and spoiled dispositions. Wiser parents insist upon loyalty, respect, consideration and service. Children should be shown how to make sacrifice so as to find in a sacrifice a very great joy.

Mrs. T. J. Winebrenner spoke on the "Nervousness of Pupils," and the need of such children for all the patience the teacher can give. The nervous child often cannot recite with the same ease of the less nervous child and yet the knowledge of the subject may be more accurate. The nervous child deserves the utmost patience in handling for impatience and misunderstanding often aggravate the situation.

Dr. H. C. Allemen spoke on the great problem of giving accurate scientific knowledge to young people approaching adolescence. He deplored the condition by which so many young people get the knowledge of great life factors in a way that is not calculated to encourage self-respect and respect for the highest human functions. Too much knowledge is arrived at from low planes. He was ready to co-operate with any plan that might be determined upon to give the proper knowledge at the proper time. The talk of Dr. Allemen impressed his hearers as one of great importance needing scientific treatment.

Miss Helen Cope of the High School faculty gave an interesting talk from the standpoint of the teacher. She said teachers recognized the importance of Dr. Allemen's suggestions. That they were always on the watch for the development of the improper in school life, but such developments usually were hidden from the teachers and came to them last. As to the nervousness of some pupils, frequently their social life contributed to the nervousness, they were up late at nights, studying after social distraction. She emphasized the need of children for lots of fresh air and exercise and the diversions their environments presented but for concentrated study the scholars need regular study for good mental discipline and that such regular study would help to overcome nervousness. Children need plenty of sleep and eating of breakfast in some other way than bolting food. Late hours, less sleep and a hurried breakfast are not calculated to put children in a prime condition for school work.

A motion was adopted to contribute toward the erection of a platform in the Meade School Building. The exercises in that building have been held on a level floor and back of the third row it has often been impossible to see the children.

Other members on the program were a reading by Miss Lily Dougherty, a vocal solo by Mrs. M. K. Eckert, and a piano solo by William Trowell.

Miss Sachs' room won the banner with eighteen parents present.

Memorial Day Plans.

The plans for Memorial Day are practically completed and will no doubt attract more than the usual attention and crowd by reason of the war atmosphere. It will be a day of inspiration in patriotism by reason of what they who fought here have so nobly advanced, a day of dedication to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion.

Rev. Paul R. Pontius, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, will preach the memorial sermon at the Post Room on the afternoon of Sunday, May 27. In the evening of the same day the veterans will take part in the procession from St. Francis Xavier Church to the Catholic Cemetery, where services will be held. At the evening church service Rev. W. F. Boyle will preach a sermon suitable to the occasion.

On Memorial Day there will be the usual parade at 1:30 with exercises at the rostrum. The two battalions of college students have been invited to take part in the parade. The equipment and guns for these battalions have been received and the first public parade of the boys will likely be on Memorial Day. The oration of the day will be by Dr. Lyman Whitney Allen, of Brooklyn, a noted author, poet and preacher.

Red Cross News.

A telegram on Tuesday to the Gettysburg Chapter of the American Red Cross contained the following message to Red Cross Chapters from President Wilson:

"I have to-day created within the Red Cross a War Council to which will be entrusted the duty of responding to the extraordinary demands which the present war will make upon the services of the Red Cross both in the field and in civilian relief. The best way in which to impart the greatest efficiency and energy to the relief work this war will entail will be to concentrate it in the hands of a single experienced organization which has been recognized by law and by international convention as the public instrumentality for such purposes.

"Indeed, such a concentration of administrative action in this matter seems to me absolutely necessary, and I hereby earnestly call upon all those who can contribute either great sums or small to the alleviation of the suffering and distress which must inevitably arise out of this fight for humanity and democracy, to contribute to the Red Cross. It will be one of the first and most necessary tasks of the new War Council of the Red Cross to raise great sums of money for the support of the work to be done and done upon a great scale. I hope that the response to their efforts will be a demonstration of the generosity of America and the power of genuine practical sympathy among our people that will command the admiration of the whole world."

Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, Secretary of the Gettysburg Chapter, has been invited to organize branch chapters in different parts of the county and on Monday evening went to New Oxford for the purpose. The New Oxford item reports the meeting as follows:

At an enthusiastically attended meeting in the Crystal Theatre Monday evening a local Red Cross Chapter was organized. Rev. Baker opened the meeting with prayer, followed by addresses by Revs. Baker, and Garrett. The French National Hymn was sung by Misses Ethel Sheely and Ruth Himes. Several patriotic selections were rendered by Dr. Ruff Snyder's Quartet. Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, Secretary of the Adams county organization gave a most interesting address on the origin, works, and need of the Red Cross. The following officers were elected: Dr. Ruff Snyder, President; Mrs. John Blair, Vice President; Mrs. Helen Snyder, Secretary; and Miss Mae Gilbert, Treasurer. Executive and Soliciting Committee was appointed by the president. A vote of thanks was given for the use of the Crystal Theatre and to Rev. Fr. Stock for the offer of the Parochial Hall for the work room. 93 members were enrolled and $46 collected. The meeting was closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

At the Wednesday evening meeting of the Queen's Daughters in Xavier Hall, 52 yards of gauze were worked up into two sizes of compresses and three sizes of pads. Forty-five ladies were at the Red Cross headquarters Tuesday afternoon including bandages and compresses. The committee is kept busy the day before these gatherings preparing for the work to be done. A sewing machine has been loaned the Society by Mrs. O. J. Horner. Two bandage rollers are kept busy. Twenty-three members have been added to the Gettysburg Red Cross Chapter since last week, and made up of one life member, one contributing member and twenty annual members. They are as follows: Mrs. Chas. H. Smith, Col. E. D. Cope, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wm. Bream, Miss Mary Cope, Miss Helen Cope, Mrs. John Warner, Mrs. H. G. Baker, of Peach Glen Sta., P. M. Baker, Mrs. Thos. J. Winebrenner, Miss Margaret Horner of Knoxville, Mrs. J. C. Warner, Mrs. Mabel Bailey, Mrs. Elmer Slaybaugh, Mrs. H. L. Snyder, Miss Mabel Bream, Miss Emily Brinkerhoff, Miss Anna Gilliland, L. M. Cramer, Mrs. Wm. C. Storrie, M. F. Kane of Biglerville, R. R. Mrs. Lillie Thomas, Miss Olga Thomas.

Age of Civil War Volunteers.

During the discussion in Congress the following records were developed: Of volunteers during the Civil War, there were 25 who were only 10 years old—they were drummer boys; there were 28 who were 11 years old; there were 225 who were 12 years old; there were 300 who were 13 years old; there were 1,523 who were 14 years old; there were 10,687 who were 15 years old; there were 21,051 who were 16 years old; there were 24,681 who were 17 years old; there were 118,428 who were 18 years old. Then of those of 22 years of age there were 68,511; of 25 years of age there were 46,426; of 44 years of age there were 16,071. Over half of the army which we had during the Civil War consisted of boys of 18 years of age.

Excursions Booked.

The Reading Railway Company has booked a number of excursions for the summer:

Sunday, May 27, from Philadelphia, Pottstown and intermediate stations.

Wednesday, May 30, from Allentown, Harrisburg and intermediate stations.

Sunday, July 1, from Allentown, Harrisburg and intermediate stations.

Sunday, July 1, from Philadelphia, Pottstown and intermediate stations.

Sunday, August 12, from Philadelphia, Lebanon and intermediate stations.

Sunday, September 16, from Philadelphia, Lebanon and intermediate stations.

Excursionists will have no extra trouble or expense in seeing the battlefield. There seems to be some misapprehension on that score by reason of guides being licensed. The guides are licensed for the protection of the traveler. All guides have passed examinations and are qualified to explain the battlefield. They have been receiving instructions so as to help them in that work. The battlefield is free to all who wish to see it on foot or in their own conveyances but when guides are desired the licensed guides are those to be used for the protection of the travelers and public. If their services are not satisfactory, complaints can be filed with the National Park Commission and thus both the individual and the public may be protected. Employment of those without license means to be beyond the protection that has been provided.

Summer in the Real Country.

Speed of the Dromedary.

The speed of the dromedary has been greatly exaggerated, the Arabs asserting that it is swifter than the horse, but eight or nine miles an hour is the utmost that it is able to perform. This pace, however, it can keep up for hours together.

If You Need Rugs Within the Next Year==Buy Them Now!

THIS is sound advice, which may be wisely followed by all home furnishers. The present shortage of carpet wool, of jute, of linen, and the higher costs of labor, fuel, power and other items, are forcing manufacturers to increase prices of future shipments. If you need Rugs at once, or next summer or autumn—buy them NOW at present prices. For the information of our customers it is almost unnecessary to say that, irrespective of market conditions, we shall still adhere to the same standards. Our prices always shall be based on actual costs to us—and we shall take advantage of every merchandising opportunity which might be converted to your advantage. Despite unprecedented market conditions our selling of Rugs last month exceeded all previous records for January and February sales. The following Rugs here named we have fair stocks of.

Wool Fiber Rugs	Tapestry	Axminster	Body Brussels

6x9 ft.	8-3x10-2
8-3x10-6	9x12
9x12

Oil Cloth, Linola and Linoleums. The above remarks hold good in this line as some of the largest manufacturers have withdrawn their lines and the trend of advance and scarcity is sure to be felt this year. We have a fair assortment here at no exorbitant prices

Window Shades. These are higher than last season, but we feel confident we can give you prices that will save you money from prices later on when our present stock is sold

DECLINE OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Only Poverty and Insanitation Will Prevent Its Extinction.

If tuberculosis shall continue to decrease in this country at the same rate as in the past half century it will be obliterated in another decade. This is the opinion of Dr. Cleveland Lloyd, expressed at the Harvard Medical school. There are two conditions, however, which will prevent the complete obliteration of this lung disease at present, and these are poverty and lack of hygiene surroundings.

Dr. Lloyd said that almost everybody has the germs of this disease in his system, but that he is able to resist their attack through having a healthy life and through the protection of nature.

Inhalation and infection are the two common ways in which a person contracts tuberculosis. Children may get the disease from their parents, but outdoor play prevents this, and it often happens that children who go to work in the city contract the disease from their parents. The disease is also spread by the air, and is often contracted from a person who has been in a hospital or a sanatorium. The disease is also spread by the air, and is often contracted from a person who has been in a hospital or a sanatorium. ### MANAGING A SNAKE.

How to Capture and Control Any Rep- tile Without Danger.

If you are quick and fearless you may manage any snake so long as you are armed with a cane or a piece of wood like a cane.

Push the snake around in any way that you can in order to prevent him from coiling. When you have him in just the right position make a very quick move and place your cane across his neck just behind his head. Then you have him. He cannot get out of control.

Now bend down and grasp the snake in the place where your cane rests, just behind his head. With your left hand put his body under your right arm. No matter how enraged the reptile may be he can do no harm as long as you hold him in this position. His body is held by your arm against your side so he cannot coil around you or around any convenient object.

In handling snakes in the house it is essential to keep away from furniture or anything which the snake could coil about. They are very strong, and once they get themselves wrapped around any object it is exceedingly difficult to pry them loose. — Popular Science Monthly.

Mock Suns of the Arctic.

The mock suns of the arctic regions are somewhat similar to the mirages of the desert. As the long winter night of the polar region wanes once every twenty-four hours a slight glow is seen at some point on the horizon. Often accompanying this glow is seen the phenomenon of the mock suns. Several degrees up in the heavens as many as five of these spectral orbs have been seen at one time. Invariably they are all connected in a geometric figure, the suns seemingly bound together with circles and arms of light. The explanation of the phenomenon is given by physicists as refraction and reflection of light from the real sun below the horizon on the mists in the upper atmosphere.

Reviving Dying Trees.

A curious method of reviving languishing or dying trees was reported recently to the French Academy of Agriculture after being tested successfully in experimental gardens at Aulun, according to the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The earth was first removed so as to lay bare the larger root branches, in which longitudinal slits were then cut and filled with wedges. These cuts were well rubbed with linseed oil, and after a few days numerous small roots appeared, forming a sort of fan, and the trees so treated rapidly gained new life and vigor. The method was recommended for trial in the case of languishing fruit trees.

Cooking Oatmeal.

In preparing oatmeal if double quantity is cooked at one time, using half for one morning and putting the other half in a bowl, covering it with cold water, it will only be necessary to pour the water off and reheat for the second morning. Covering it with water prevents the hard crust from forming, which always does it left dry, and must be lifted off, thereby causing waste. — Philadelphia Record.

Assent.

"My wife is undecided whether to buy me a birthday gift or spend the money on a trip to her sister's," said skimpily Mr. Meek.

"Confidentially, I would a good deal rather have the absent than the present." — Life.

Becoming.

"Isn't my new dress becoming to me?" asked the delighted wife. "Yes," replied the head of the establishment, "and I suppose the bill for it will soon be coming to me."

Insects and Crops.

An annual loss of crops from insects in the United States is estimated at $1,200,000,000. In view of this every one ought to encourage a larger force of bird police.

Good Guess.

Ed.—Say, what's the rest of that question beginning "Truth is mighty?" Or—"Beware." I guess. — Exchange.

A MENTAL MARVEL.

Mary Lyon Learned the Whole Latin Grammar Over Sunday.

Studying was never hard work to Mary Lyon, the well loved founder of Mount Holyoke seminary, now Mount Holyoke college. Her busy childhood in a frugal New England home had taught her to attack a task at once, while others frequently were spending their time thinking and talking about it. In St. Nicholas, Mary Parkman tells how in Ashland tradition long kept the memory of her first recitation.

"On Friday she had been given the first lesson of Adams' Latin grammar to commit to memory. When she was called up early Monday afternoon she began to recite fluently declensions and conjugations without pause until as the daylight waned the whole of the Latin grammar passed in review before the speechless teacher and dazzled admiring pupils.

"How did you ever do it? How could your head hold it all?" demanded Amanda, with a gasp, as they walked home together.

"Well, really, I'll have to own up," said Mary, with some reluctance; "I studied all day Sunday. It wasn't so very hard, though. I soon saw where the changes in the conjugations came in, and the syntax rules are much like English grammar."

"Wrong Number."

There is no place where the disposition of a person is better shown than at the telephone when one accidentally or otherwise rings up the wrong number. Then the answer to the signal tells the sort of person the respondent is. Sometimes he gets very mad and spitefully answers and then with a bang hangs up the receiver, as if the man who rings him up has done so with malice prepense. But sometimes the respondent answers with a fellow feeling in his heart and knowing it is no fault of the person at the other end of the line, speaks gently and kindly and really makes of the accident a pleasant incident. How much we all prefer to deal with the latter individual! — Exchange.

Fashion's Changes.

"Fashion in earlier times," we are informed by a student, "originated in the royal courts, and most of the absurdities of fashion that we have inherited began as efforts of the designers of royal court to conceal certain royal deformities or blemishes. These absurdities are being rapidly discarded."

Yes, it is now quite evident from the styles that humanity thinks it has nothing to hide. — Chicago News.

Old Salts.

Another couple was about to be launched on the sea of matrimony.

"They don't seem a bit afraid," some one back in the crowd observed.

"And why should they?" asked the gentleman next. "They've both been across several times." — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Master of Fiction.

"What is Dobbieigh's general reputation for veracity, Eldad?" asked Hick-enlooper.

"Well, it's this way," said Eldad. "If Dobbieigh could write the way he talks he'd have Sir Walter Scott and Alexander Dumas lashed to the mast."

Her Opinion.

"What did you think of my paper at the Browning club?"

"I thought it by far the best one your husband ever wrote for you." — Detroit Free Press.

DEATHS.

tyburg. The man made friends and, in order to overcome the difficulty they experienced in learning his name, he assumed the title of "Joe Clements." He lived for a long time at Bittinger where he worked for a number of persons. He was a member of the Catholic Church and his funeral was conducted by Rev. W. F. Boyle. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Marie Boussillon, of Washington, D. C.

Rev. Dr. Mahlon C. Horine, a brother-in-law of Mrs. D. J. Swartz of Carlisle street, was killed on Wednesday, when he fell in front of the automobile of Dr. Thomas, a personal friend, at Manoa Hill, a Philadelphia suburb, who was slowing up his car, intending to invite the Rev. Horine for a ride. The fender of the car struck him, causing a fracture of the skull, and which resulted in death half an hour later. Dr. Thomas, whose home is in Newton Square, gave himself up to the police, but was discharged by the coroner, as it was an unavoidable accident. Dr. Horine was in his 79th year. He was a native of Frederick county, Md., graduated from Gettysburg College in the class of 1861, and from the Seminary in 1863, and had served pastorates at Smithsburg, Md., Dayton and Zanesville, Ohio, Danville and Reading. He was married to Miss Emma F. Vimebrenner of this place, who died a few years ago. He is survived by one son and one daughter. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon with services in the College Lutheran Church, conducted by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Derling Sipe, a former resident of York Springs, died last week at his home in Harrisburg of tuberculosis, aged about 40 years. Red Cross Campaign for Members.

The Gettysburg Chapter of the Red Cross needs members and money.

While there are over 200 members in the Chapter, yet the percentage of dues staying in the local treasury is small. The total of a life membership goes to the National Society and the need of the national organization is tremendous. The annual membership of $1 gives the local Chapter one-half of the fee and that is the source from which comes the purchase of supplies. The cost of the materials to be made up in the needed supplies will cost near to $20 a week to keep the three or four gatherings a week busy. Members and money are the needs of the Gettysburg Chapter. Now is the time to join the Red Cross.

The executive committee of the Gettysburg Chapter of the Red Cross at a recent meeting, realizing the very urgent need of members and money, advised a membership campaign. H. T. Weaver, chairman, appointed a committee on Publicity and Ways and Means, with Hon. C. William Beales as chairman, to arrange for a demonstration and membership campaign May 25. On the committee the following were named: Prof. L. A. Parsons, Charles W. Gardner, Prof. C. H. Huber, W. A. McClean, Charles R. Dougherty, M. K. Eckert, William Miller, John W. Rehm, Miss Anna Reck, Miss Anna Fox and Miss Anna Horner.

Senator Beales met with the committee Thursday evening. They were enthusiastic for a drive for membership and the opinion was volunteered by all that a successful drive for a total membership of 500 in Gettysburg could be made. Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, secretary of the Gettysburg Chapter, met with the committee and plans were outlined for the campaign.

Senator Beales appointed a committee on canvassers and districting the town, with Mrs. Lewars as chairman. Other members of the committee are: Prof. Parsons and Prof. Huber. Voluntary canvassers are desired. They will likely be asked for in the Sunday Schools of the town. Forty or more will be wanted. The town will be divided into small districts to be quickly canvassed.

The headquarters for the day will be located at the old Huber Drug Store stand, on Baltimore street, which was given by Mr. Beales. There will be a score card of some description arranged in the Square and as the canvassers report the total membership will be given to the public. According to population Gettysburg should give five times the number New Oxford gives. There are 93 members now in that town and they expect to have 150. In the same proportion on Gettysburg should have 765 members. The Littlestown branch is growing and to keep pace with its growth will take a membership of over 500 here.

Board of Health's Recommendations.

To minimize the possibility of the appearance of Infantile Paralysis, the Board of Health has established the following regulations, to be enforced throughout the summer and fall.

Garbage must be kept in closed receptacles, removed and burned or buried twice a week. It must not be hauled through the streets other than in closed receptacles, between the hours of 6 A. M. and 9 P. M.

House drainage of any character must not be discharged or thrown on any alley or street in the Borough.

Stagnant water must not be allowed to collect or remain on any premises within the Borough limits.

All food stuffs exposed for sale must be protected from flies dirt and domestic animals, and if exposed on sidewalks, must be elevated at least 24 inches.

Hog pens must be kept clean and dry, and in no case shall any drainage therefrom be allowed to escape or collect outside of the pen.

Ground where manure or garbage has stood, or made foul by surface drainage must be cleaned and treated with unslaked lime.

All privies must be immediately cleaned, all work of this kind being done between the hours of 10 P. M. and 5 A. M., and thereafter be kept dry with earth or lime—must be so constructed as to preclude the escape of contents, made fly proof, and the seats provided with covers.

Stables must be cleaned daily, and manure kept in closely covered or screened pits or bins.

The Board recommends that all dwellings be effectively screened, cellars be made clean and dry, and ventilating openings screened.

The Board earnestly urges the co-operation of all in carrying out these measures of prevention, against this terrible scourge, and warns all that disregard of notice to correct any of these faulty conditions will be promptly followed by prosecution. It asks you now—it will if necessary, ask you individually a second time—but not a third time.

By order of
THE BOARD OF HEALTH,
HENRY STEWART,
Secretary

College Presidents' Convention.

The spring convention of the college presidents of Pennsylvania and Maryland met in Brua Chapel last Friday afternoon with twenty-one institutions represented as follows:

Dr. Drinker of Lehigh, Brother Edwards of La Salle, Dean Dunham of Temple, Pres. Heiber of Duquesne, Pres. Swain of Swarthmore, Prof. Johnson of Lincoln, Pres. Sharpless of Haverford, Pres. Haas of Muhlenberg, Dean Quinn of Penn. Prof. Houtz of Susquehanna, Dean Heckel of Lafayette, Pres. Omwake of Ursinus, Dean Rau of Moravian, Dr. Gobbie of Albright, Pres. Wallace of Westminster, Dean Cullimore of Delaware, Pres. Morgan of Dickinson, Chancellor McCormick of Pitt, Prof. Smith of State, Dean Dohan of Villa Nova, and Dr. W. A. Granville of Gettysburg.

The meeting was largely taken up with the discussions on the athletic question and the effect of the war on educational institutions. The former problem was discussed at length, but final action on the matter was deferred until the fall meeting.

The sentiment was unanimous that the war situation should not interfere with the work of the schools and colleges. This was the sense of a resolution adopted by the presidents. A similar resolution was adopted by a convention of college presidents of America held in Washington May 5. At this latter meeting Secretary of War Baker told the presidents that the greatest duty of all schools at this time was to continue their work as under normal conditions and that he did not condone the enlistment of college students in the army.

On Friday evening an informal dinner was given to the visitors in the Gettysburg Academy Building. Members of the local faculty were in attendance. Saturday morning a very thorough trip over the battlefield was made in automobiles and the great battle explained to the visitors.

Berkeley Hydrate is the Best Form of Lime to Use Because

- There is no fire risk.
- It does not deteriorate with age.
- It can be hauled when most convenient and stored in any shed until time for use.
- Except for the water necessary to hydrate, it is pure lime.
- It is easy to handle and spread.
- Its fineness makes it economical.
- One ton of lime to the acre if UNIFORMLY DISTRIBUTED would make a layer only 1-300 inch in thickness. Lime MUST be uniformly distributed and therefore VERY FINELY DIVIDED in order to reach the rootlets of the crops and accomplish its work.
- BERKELEY Hydrate will practically all pass through a sieve with 10,000 holes to the square inch. This is the reason why one-half ton to the acre of BERKELEY Hydrate will accomplish the same results as double the quantity of lump lime slaked in the field.

My Burglary

It Had Farreaching Results

By ELINOR MARSH

I am of an artistic temperament. From my earliest girlhood I had loved beautiful scenes. I took to drawing pictures early and in time became a water color sketcher. In summer time I drove around in a vehicle called a reckaway, drawn by an old horse that had been in my family a long while and in which I had never considered.

At night I would sit in my room at a hotel, so close to the city, and occasionally I would go out to the city on my grassy grounds and spend the night on my lawn.

One evening when I was some miles from a town, which I expected to reach before dark, Bob came lame. Looking for a shelter, for I could not get out of a horse, I espied a small, dark, old, and perched on a ledge. It was as artistic a place of abode as I ever saw, with its perches and vines growing over it. Indeed, the tent ensemble constituted a thing of beauty. If I could only be permitted to spend the night there I would be delighted.

I managed to get Bob to the gateway of the place and up a short winding road leading to the house. I was disappointed in not seeing any about, and as I drew near it occurred to me that the place was unoccupied. The blinds were not closed and there was nothing to indicate that the house was empty. What was it that told me that the place was deserted?

Leaving Bob standing in the roadway, I went to the house and rapped on the front door with a brass knocker. It did not seem to me, if there had been anyone within, that those knocks would have sounded so hollow. I listened, but there was no indication of any one stirring. Going around to the rear I failed to see any indication of a living being. There were no chickens, no dog, not even a lonely cat. Only a few flowers in beds near the house that I judged grew without being cultivated. There was a woodshed and some wood in it, but plenty of room for Bob in case I should have to leave him there.

Looking in at a window, I saw a library with a fine broad fireplace and among the furniture a large lounge. The sash was locked, and I went to other windows, but found them locked also. A trellis led to an upper window. It looked easy to climb, and I went up it and found the sash unlocked. I went into a bedroom and down a staircase. The front door was locked and no key, but I opened a side door by turning the latch.

I could understand the fascination of burglary so interested was I in appropriating the premises to my use for the night. There was a zest in temporarily owning this place, so beautiful and yet so desolate, which was enhanced by my having to break into it and learn what there was suited to my necessities.

The next thing was to unharness Bob and give him his supper. Then I went into the house with my lunch box, in which I always kept something and in which I now fortunately had enough to satisfy my appetite. There were cupboards in which I entailed might be stored, but they were locked. After eating I lighted a lamp in the library and looked over the books. It was evident that whoever had filled these shelves was a well educated and intelligent person. I have never before come upon a library in which every book had a value. And what surprised me most was that some of the books were up to date. I read till quite late, then, throwing myself on the lounge, I went to sleep.

On waking in the morning I was astonished to detect the odor of coffee. What did it mean? Was the house, after all, occupied? Had the occupants returned late? I arose and went into the dining room. The table was set for breakfast, but for only one person. Hurrying on, I entered the kitchen. On the range a little fire was smoldering, and there was a coffee pot that emitted the odor. A toast rack stood on the mantel, and a couple of eggs were ready for boiling.

I started to find whoever had come in, to apologize for my burglary, and not finding any one on the ground floor, went cautiously upstairs. The bedroom door was open as I had left them the night before, but no one was in any of them. The house was as free from any person except myself as it was when I broke in.

I went downstairs again, looked about me and feared. There was no sound save the smoldering kettle in the kitchen.

Was I in my room? Was I asleep and dreaming? Was I committing a play for a movie show?

But the odor of the coffee, the remembrance of the toast and the eggs, to say nothing of a dish of radishes and some tempting butter on the breakfast table, overpowered wonder, and, going into the kitchen, I boiled the eggs, and, removing them, I sat down to eat. My grace was:

"Fairly godmother, I thank thee." Never did a breakfast taste so delicious. There was no great variety, but there was all I wanted. After I had eaten I removed the dishes to the kitchen, poured water from the kettle and proceeded to wash them.

"Fairly godmother," I said aloud, "do me one more favor. Tell me to whom I am indebted for my lodging and especially for the delicious breakfast I have eaten."

"The obligation is all on the other side," said a voice behind me.

Turning quickly, I saw a man standing outside the kitchen, his arms resting on the window sill.

I stood looking at him, not knowing what to say to him. He was an intellectual and refined looking man about thirty years of age. A certain sadness was stamped upon his features, but a change appeared to be breaking over it as a rift in lowering clouds. I was standing with a plate in one hand and a dishcloth in the other gazing at him. Since I had nothing to say he continued:

"You are the first woman who has been in this house in three years. Your being here has broken a spell, I trust forever."

"Will you kindly explain this fairly born breakfast?" I said.

"Certainly," I came here occasionally and happened to come early this morning, for some work to do here. Seeing a horse and conveyance, I proceeded with caution. Looking in at the library window, I saw you sleeping on the lounge. It occurred to me that you would need a breakfast, and I set about preparing it. There was not much to give you, but I trust it sufficed."

"It was delicious. Now that you have explained I trust you will listen to my apology for trespassing on your domain." And I told my story, after which I said that I would no longer keep him out of his own house and suggested that he come in. But he said that when a man gives up his house to a woman he has no business there so long as she occupies it. To this I replied that I made my own conventional rules. Besides, I would depart as soon as I had finished doing the dishes. But he remained where he was, and when I had finished he placed chairs on the porch, and, I feeling sure that he had a story to tell me, we sat down for further chat. Then for the first time I saw a motorcar standing before the door in which he had come. This was his story:

"I built the house for a summer residence for myself and the woman I expected to marry. She was of delicate health, and we are prone to become more attached to one who is dependent on us for comfort than one who is independent of us. We planned the place together and while it was building used to come out here and watch the materializing of our conceptions. It is not an elaborate place, but we spared no pains to make it habitable."

"Before it was finished I knew that my beloved would not live to enjoy it. She was unconscious of the seriousness of her malady and continued to look forward to our occupancy of it with happy expectation. On no account would I break in upon this anticipation. Instead, I consulted constantly with her how we would have this and how we would arrange that, keeping her interested in what could never be realized in order to shield her from the dread truth."

"While the house was building I continued to make changes in order to prolong the period of construction. In her condition our residence here would not be convenient. She needed the care which she could not have here. When the house was finished I laid new plans for the grounds. One spring—the last of her life—we came out here frequently, and I worked with and directed men in planting and garden improvements, while she lay here on the porch and looked on, making such suggestions as occurred to her."

"Meanwhile my beloved was growing more and more feeble. But not till the day she left me did she realize that we were to be separated; that she would never occupy with me that on which we had lavished so much thought and care."

"All was finished at last. The place was ready, and my beloved's stay on earth came to an end. Perhaps had I not lost an object in the completion of what had so long occupied me I would have found my bereavement more readily. As it was, I became one of those who, with a girl, I have kept up this place and have come here occasionally, as another would visit a grave. That ghost has been lifted. When I looked in at the library window and saw a human being there, sleeping, that castle of grief which I have created round about me these premises, which I have made a tomb of melancholy, have been restored to what they really are."

I listened to this recital with a sympathy that I did not try to conceal. I understood perfectly the change I had wrought. I understood the motive—his seeing a living woman in his home—that had led him to prepare a breakfast for her. For years he had had no one upon whom to lavish a single kindly act. Suddenly a woman appeared, and he took advantage of it. Indeed, he told me that the preparation of that meal, his watching me eat it, which he had done surreptitiously, was the happiest moment that came to him in years.

Upon examining Bob we found him still lame, but my new friend found the cause and removed it. He insisted on harnessing the horse to the vehicle, and when I left him he said to me:

"This will be the first day that I have ever spent here free from melancholy."

My forcible entrance to another person's property occurred several years ago. The next time I entered it was as the bride of the owner. Since the place was perfect when it was finished there is nothing to do with it but enjoy it. But if I should see the slightest chance for improvement I would not mention it to my husband. We go there in May and remain through the summer. I have not yet exhausted the attractive landscapes in the vicinity as subjects for sketches.

DOUBLY PROVEN.

Gettysburg Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Gettysburg citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

John J. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, says: "I suffered off and on from rheumatic pains and kidney ailments. My back ached constantly and often in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly get out of bed. My kidneys acted irregularly. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got some at the People's Drug Store. I was surprised at the quick relief I got. I am not bothered by rheumatic pains now and I am much better all around."

Over two years later, Mr. Tawney said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills. In fact I always keep them in the house. I know that if I take a few as soon as I have any symptoms of kidney trouble, I will be saved a great deal of suffering."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Tawney has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

POVERTY OF WEALTH.

There Are Many, Many Things That Money Cannot Buy.

If you have wealth you can purchase a hundred out of a war of apparel, but you can only wear one at a time. Socrates never owned but one pair of shoes, but his name is immortal. If you have wealth you can purchase beautiful paintings and adorn your home with statues. That wouldn't bring you happiness. If you have wealth you can purchase furniture in laid with gold and upholstered with fine fabrics. That doesn't mean contentment.

If you have wealth you can purchase a great park and erect a splendid mansion, but tradition tells us that there was a very happy man who lived in a tub and when the king came to see him and asked what he could desire from the king Diogenes replied, "That you would step from between me and the sun." If you have wealth you can possess an organ with golden pipes, but Beethoven composed his immortal symphonies on a cheap harp's chord. If you have wealth you can equip a luxurious studio, but Turner painted in a garret and mixed his colors in a broken teacup.

Money can purchase copies of Sir Joshua Reynolds, but God gives the sunset away free. Money can employ musicians to perform for a private concert, but the song of the lark in the tree and the music of children's laughter is for the millionaire and the poor man alike. Wealth cannot purchase the great things of life. It cannot buy a contented mind and a serene life. It cannot purchase goodness and beauty.—Dale H. Carnegie in Leslie's.

CURBING THE MISSISSIPPI.

Father of Waters at Times Becomes an Unwelcome Guest.

When the Father of Waters comes to town with all his family, as he does every ten or eleven years, we hope at some near time hereafter to exert a control over our visitor through the many millions congress has provided. The Father of Waters himself is a genial old friend on most occasions, but when he comes down the valley with the swollen Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Platte, Kaw and innumerable other streams on his back St. Louis finds him like an intoxicated guest hard to manage and utterly unwelcome.

Old Mississippi is to be made to take a more circuitous path and not startle all over the adjacent country. In fact, we do not wish him to stop at all, but hurry through and become with him to the gulf as fast as he can make his way. Most of our water is believed to come from the gulf of Mexico, and we wish to return it after we have used all we can by absorption. We are no gluttons, and enough Mississippi is enough. We adore it "fourteen feet through the valley," but not forty-four.

We are not yet entirely familiar with the plans by which flood control is to be brought about, but we judge that the river is to be compelled to act with more deliberation in its rising and falling, which is the best thing that can be done until man finds a way to stay or cut loose the rains.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Spend Money Wisely.

Says a prominent New York banker, "It is more important to know how to spend money wisely than to earn it easily. If you want to give your boy and girl a good start teach them both the fine art of thrift. And what is thrift? Thrift is all of prudence, economy, frugality and industry—and then some. Thrift is that instinct of the dog that buries the bone he does not want today for tomorrow's wants, the instinct of the squirrel that knows winter is out of season in winter. And there is thrift of earning power and thrift of spending as well as thrift of saving."

Too Much For Him.

Voltaire could not speak much English. The reason why he refused to study the language is this: It was drilled into him that "plague" was pronounced "plaiz," which he thought very pretty and acceptable. But right on top of it he was introduced to "ague," which his teacher said must be called "a-gue." Finding it impossible to reconcile the difference, he went off into a philosophical tautism and dropped the study.

THE SIZE OF ATOMS.

Far Smaller Than Anything We Can See, Feel, Taste or Smell.

In ways too intricate to be described here we have little by little got some knowledge of the probable size of atoms. They must indeed be exceedingly small. For example, in a teaspoonful of water we have good reason to believe that there are very nearly a million million million million atoms—thus: 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

That number is so tremendously big that it is beyond our ability to imagine it, even though we can write it down. It means, of course, that the atom is far smaller than anything we can see or feel or taste or smell. Indeed, the atom must be so small that if we imagine a tennis ball magnified to be forty miles in diameter the atoms in it would then be no larger than grains of fine sand one one-hundredth of an inch in diameter.

Only two or three of the kinds of atoms that we now know on earth appear to be capable of splitting up into smaller ones.

Of these atoms radium is the most striking example. Its "atoms" seem to be steadily going to pieces at such a rate that of an ounce of radium only half an ounce would be left after 1,570 years. So far as we know, the half that was lost would have turned finally into a sort of lead, together with a strange gas called helium. Each "atom" of radium perhaps yields one atom of lead and five of helium. Moreover, radium itself seems to be slowly formed from another still heavier element, uranium.—Theodore M. Richards in Youth's Companion.

Fearless.

"There goes a man who has faced death in every possible form without a tremor."

"He doesn't look like a man who has led a particularly adventurous life."

"He hasn't, but he goes to the movies every night in the week."—New York World.
